CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

Dr. Henry C. F. Meyers, the Poisoner, on Trial.

Pate and Stiers Hanged at Danville for Murdering Farmer Helmick —The Adelmont Case.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The crowd in front of the court room in which Dr. Henry C. F. Meyer is being tried was so large this morning that it required the efforts of all the officers on duty there to enforce a passageway for those having the right of admission. Dr. Meyer seemed in good spirits and responded cheerfully to his wife's greeting as she came into court. The jury was secured yesterday after a long siege, during which 900 talesmen had been examined.

The first witness examined was Carl Muller, the alleged accomplice of Dr. Meyer.

INDIANA, Dec. 8.—Great interest is manifested in the Ardlamont murder mystery as the date of the trial, December 12, approaches. Special arrangements have been made to convey witnesses from Ardlamont and other parts of the country to the sheriff's court at Edinburgh, where the trial will take place. The witnesses will be accompanied from Ardlamont by experienced officers who say that a number of those who reside near the scene of the death of Lieutenant Hambrough were suspicious from the moment they heard that the latter had been found dead in the woods, and an examination of the spot where the body was found, directly after death by the people of the neighborhood, is said to have resulted in finding traces of the footsteps of three men in the wet grass.

DANVILLE, Ill., Dec. 8.—Harvey Pate and Frank Stiers were hanged at noon today.

The crime for which Pate and Stiers were executed today was committed August 25, 1893. Four young men, Harvey Pate, aged twenty-one; Frank Stiers, nineteen; Elias McCracken, eighteen, and Charles Smoot, seventeen, were great readers of flashy literature, and Pate has served two years among the cowboys of Texas. The four conceived the idea of holding up Henry Helmick, a wealthy farmer. The boys walked twelve miles from the city and waylaid Helmick and his wife, who were in a buggy. Helmick struck his horses when a demand for money was made, and Pate shot him dead. Young Harris confessed to complicity in the deed and upon arraignment all four pleaded guilty. Pate and Stiers were sentenced to hang and McCracken and Harris to the penitentiary for life. The crime was committed on Friday. On the Sunday following Smoot confessed and on Monday the indignant neighbors of the murdered man made an unorganized attempt to take the prisoners from jail. They were dispersed, but afterwards organized 400 strong to take revenge should the sentence be less than hanging. They were satisfied with the result of the trial. Today's execution is the first in the history of this county.

DETROIT HAS A SENSATION.

Wonderful Effect of Dr. Chapman's Revival Work.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 8.—Drinkers went dry for three hours in Detroit yesterday, and shoppers who did not close their bargains before 3 p. m. had to let them go over till another day. On the doors of nearly every prominent saloon and retail house in the heart of the city, between the hours of 3 and 6, was found this startling notice: "Closed to attend Dr. Chapman's revival meeting." The meeting was about as sensational in character as the closing movement. Over 5,000 men packed the huge Auditorium to the doors, prominent among them being the leading brewers, saloonists, and rounders of the town. The services, which were conducted by Dr. Chapman, of Albany, N. Y., who has been engaged in evangelistic work here for the past six weeks, were deeply impressive. He devoted his sermon chiefly to the saloon class and made so deep an impression that fully one hundred men remained to ask for prayers at the conclusion of the regular meeting. Dr. Chapman's evangelistic work here has been wonderfully successful. More than 2,000 persons have openly professed conversion and fully 10,000 more have asked to be remembered in prayer. All classes have been reached and converts are numbered among the most notorious sections and classes of the city. The revival services are to continue for four weeks longer. They are supported and participated in by all the evangelical denominations in the city.

NEW ORLEANS MUST PAY.

Retrial of the Murdered Italians Given Damages by a Jury.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 8.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Abbagnetto, widow of one of the eleven Italian prisoners massacred in the parish prison March 14, 1891, the horrible affair growing out of the assassination of Chief of Police Hennessey, came into court with a verdict against the city of New Orleans, awarding her damages. The suit was for $20,000 and was based on the fact that the authorities made no effort to protect her husband, nor to preserve peace. It was clearly established that Abbagnetto was a subject of the king of Italy. There are a number of other suits by relatives of the lynched Italians yet to be tried.

Elected President.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—H. E. Huntington has been elected president of the Central Pacific Railroad company, to succeed the late Senator Stanford. Huntington is a nephew of C. P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific, and came to California about two years ago to look after his uncle's interests here.

ANOTHER REPEAL BILL.

This Time It is Directed Against State Bank Tax.

The Wilson Tariff Bill Still the Subject of Comment—Other Matters of Interest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—A bill to repeal the 10 per cent. tax on state bank circulation has been framed by the sub-committee, to which the full committee on banking and currency referred all measures relating to this question. The bill framed will be reported to the full committee for final action before reported to the house. It does not repeal the tax unconditionally, but provides that the issues of currency shall be under the direction of the comptroller of the currency and shall be limited in amount. The comptroller's supervision will prevent the issue of currency, which is not amply secured, and tend to prevent wildcat issues. It is understood that the bill has the approval of the president, who desires the repeal if it is surrounded with proper safeguards.

The officials of the treasury department who are experts in matters relating to the customs, have been of considerable help to the ways and means committee in suggesting improvements in the phraseology of the customs administrative feature of the Wilson tariff bill. They say that as a result of this many of the ambiguous clauses that crept into it have been detected and modified, and there will be no doubt of the construction that congress intended should be placed on the provisions of the bill. "It is a matter of regret," said an official of the department today, "that we have not had a commission of experts whose duty it would be to pass on the construction of a bill affecting revenue which are proposed for enactment. This would relieve the treasury from many embarrassments when the laws were put into practical operation. All bills affecting the customs in England go through the hands of the commissioner of customs and the result is beneficial. A few words will frequently make a great difference in a law and in no case is it better demonstrated than in that affecting the classifications of hat trimmings, where the words "any other material" has cost the government litigation and millions of money."

In the house today Mr. Talbot, of South Carolina, endeavored to get adopted a resolution instructing the ways and means and banking commission to report on tariff and banking bills at once, but objection was made.

Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, called up the bill to admit Utah to statehood and republican to filibuster.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The morning hours expired without action on the Utah bill and the house went into a committee of the whole on the Terry bankruptcy bill. Mr. Bland, of Missouri, moved to strike out the enacting clause, thus defeating the measure. After an excited debate his motion prevailed.

The democratic members of the ways and means committee of the house have changed the tin plate schedule from advalorem to specific duty, fixing the rate at one and one-fifth cents per pound, which is just a cent lower than the present rate.

INDIANAPOLIS BANK CASES.

Federal Grand Jury Excused by the Judge Until Dec. 18.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 8.—The federal grand jury was excused by Judge Baker yesterday till Monday, Dec. 18, at which time they were ordered to report again for duty. It is generally understood that the jury was permitted to adjourn upon the request of the district attorney that he might have time in which to prepare the indictments in the bank cases and have them ready for the signature of the foreman when the body reconvened. The judge told the jurors that they must not talk to anyone about the work before the jury, nor allow anyone to talk with them. It is denied by the representatives of the government that there is any significance to the delay in returning the indictments.

Died From Exposure.

TAYLOR, Kas., Dec. 8.—Henry Clay Landers, who on December 1st murdered his fellow waiter in the Troop hotel in this city, as the guests were coming into supper, and who gave himself up to the authorities December 5th, died this morning in the county jail. Landers death is from exposure and suffering during the four days after he stabbed his companion.

Fast Steamer Launched.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 8.—The new Louisville and Cincinnati steamer was launched at Howard's yards, in Jeffersonville yesterday. It is claimed she will be the fastest boat on the river and will cost between $80,000 and $100,000. She has been named the City of Louisville.

Refused Consent.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 8.—The standing committee of diocese of Springfield Episcopal church has refused its consent to the consecration of Rev. A. C. Hall, bishop-elect of the diocese of Vermont.

The National Union will hold their annual election of officers tonight at 7:30, at their hall in the Bass Block.

ROBBERS LOOT A BANK.

A South Bend Bank is Robbed of $15,000.

During the Momentary Absence of the Cashier About the Noon Hour a Solitary Thief Entered the Bank.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 8.—The boldest robbery in the annals of northern Indiana crime was committed yesterday about noon, the victim being the South Bend National bank, one of the leading concerns of the state. The amount taken was $15,000.

Shortly after noon, while Cashier Campbell was absent at dinner, Assistant Cashier Kelley, who resides in the rear of the building, was called to his front door by a man who said he wanted to see him on some business. Just about this time a man appeared at the bank building on the north and effected an entrance to the directors' room, prying open the window sash with a steel chisel. He then forced a heavy oak door and was immediately in front of the vault. The outer vault door was open, but a two-inch middle door had been closed by Cashier Campbell. This yielded readily, the combination having for some reason failed to work, and before the robber closed the counter tray containing between three and ten thousand dollars.

In the safe a pile of $14,000 in gold and many thousands in greenbacks was arranged on shelves. The prime idea seemed to be to take as much as possible of the money in sight without arousing suspicion before the robber had had plenty of time to make good their escape. For this reason the counter tray, with its loose thousands, was undisturbed, the robber confining his theft to the safe, from which he took $4,000 in yellow coin, about all he could carry, and $11,000 in bills. No silver coin was touched. The vault was then closed and the robber made his escape by means of a hook door before Assistant Cashier Kelly had again passed through the building.

There seems to be little doubt but that the theft was the act of one man only, and that a very strong guard was thrown about him on the outside.

It is the belief that a gang of professionals have been watching the bank for many days, and that its members became thoroughly conversant with the movements of Cashier Campbell and his assistants, knowing the time they left, when they usually returned, what large sums in use and all other minute details, so that when time for action came there could be no hitch unless something unusual and unforseen occurred. Everything appears to have been accurately planned, for there was not the slightest hitch in any part of the plan, as is shown by the fact that the bank is the loser by nearly $16,000.

BANE MAN SENT TO AN ASYLUM.

Mystery About the Case of L. J. Shuckey, a Lima, Ohio, Merchant.

LIMA, Ohio, Dec. 8.—There is some mystery connected with the taking of L. J. Shuckey, a business man of this city, to the Toledo asylum last Saturday evening. Dr. Tobey, the superintendent of that institution, and his assistant, Dr. Creps, sent immediate word to the friends of Mr. Shuckey at Lima, saying they could discover no trace or semblance of insanity in Shuckey. The patient himself sent urgent word to the law firm of Hildebrant & Hallbill, asking them to institute legal proceedings for his release. Mr. Hildebrant went to Toledo and caused a writ of habeas corpus to be issued in the probate court. Mr. Shuckey and also the attendants and physicians in charge of the asylum were brought before the court, and, after hearing the testimony, the court discharged him. He returned home Wednesday night. It is said Mr. Shuckey will bring suit for damages.

OLD MOTHER HUBBARD INSANE.

The Notorious Thief Sent to the Toledo Asylum.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 8.—It is likely that Margaret Young, known in the criminal circles of the United States as "Old Mother Hubbard," has entered her last penitentiary. Probate Judge Millard this afternoon adjudged her insane and she was committed to the Toledo asylum. The prisoners at the county jail for two weeks have been awestricken by her wild actions. She talks incoherently of crimes committed all over the country and of life in the many prisons. She is seventy-two years old and was about to be tried for stealing a purse and $300.

PLUCKY LITTLE WOMAN.

Daniel Reibold and Stepdaughter Overcome by Gas.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Daniel Reibold, wife of a boot and shoe merchant, dragged her husband and stepdaughter, each larger than herself, out of the cellar at their home in the nick of time to save their lives. They were unconscious from gas asphyxiation when the little woman went to their rescue. Mr. Reibold had gone to the cellar to discover the cause of the leak and the daughter had gone to help him in answer to his call. Mr. Reibold and the daughter are not out of danger.

JUROR SAYS HE WAS INFLUENCED

Counsel Excitement in a Court Room at Logansport, Ind.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Dec. 8.—Excitement was created in the circuit court yesterday when Judge Swigart asked the jury if the sealed verdict returned last night was their verdict. Juror Arthur Finegan, a blacksmith, arose, and in answer to the judge's question, said that he signed the verdict, but he was influenced into doing it, as he was given to understand that it was to his interest to do so, and that he was not satisfied with the verdict. Foreman of the Jury Tate arose and attempted to explain the matter, but Judge Swigart silenced him and ordered the jury to return to the jury room. The jury afterward failed to agree and were discharged. Frank Williams was on trial charged with a violation of the city saloon ordinance. The case will be investigated.

SUICIDE AT WARSAW.

A Traveling Salesman Takes a Big Dose of Poison.

He Leaves a Letter Giving Instructions as to the Disposition of His Body.

WARSAW, Ind., Dec. 8.—A. A. Boogenshausen, a traveling salesman for a Chicago wholesale jewelry house, committed suicide at the Hotel Hays, in this city, early this morning, by taking poison. He left a letter giving directions as to the disposition of his body, and stating that he was a victim of circumstances.

HIDDEN MONEY FOUND.

Nearly $100,000 Found in the House of a Dead Indianapolis Man.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 8.—Joseph Deitch, a German citizen, eighty years of age, died Wednesday. He was known to be wealthy, but even his family did not know that he was possessed of the amount of cash that was found in different places in his room when a search was made. The remains were placed in the vault Wednesday and Thursday morning the will was filed for probate. It bequeathed several large amounts to charities, provided liberally for all of the members of the family and devised large sums to the Hebrew church of which he was a member. When his account at the bank was examined it was found that it did not justify such liberal bequests and a search for the money was inaugurated. In his room was found a large amount of money in gold and silver coin, packages of bills and notes and bonds which he was not known to have. The money thus found aggregated $95,000.

MADISON SQUARE BANK.

The Trial Again Postponed for Ten Days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Counsel for the indicted directors of the Madison Square bank applied to Judge Barrett today for an extension of the time allowed them within which they may substitute demurrers in place of their pleas of not guilty, or make appropriate motions regarding the indictments if they be so advised. The ground for the application was that the minutes of the grand jury were not served upon the counsel for the defendants until last night. They have not had time to examine the minutes sufficiently to decide what action to take. Assistant District Attorney Davis did not object and Judge Barrett extended the time until December 18.

GREAT SEARCH LIGHT.

The Government May Use It and Put It at Sandy Hook.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 8.—Herr Tiechendorfer, electrical engineer of the firm of Schuckert & Co., of Nuernburg, owners of the great search light on top of the world's fair manufacturers building, left this city last night for Washington, where he will endeavor to sell to the United States government the big 1,210,000,000 candle power light. The idea is to place the light at Sandy Hook, N. J., for military and other purposes.

TAKING TESTIMONY.

The Coughlin Trial Now Fairly Under Way.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—At the opening of the Coughlin trial today Judge Wing began his address to the jury, for the defense, and at the conclusion of his speech the taking of testimony began. It was announced that the first witness for the state will be ex-Police Captain Villiers, who would tell the story of the finding of Cronin's body.

STAY OF SENTENCE.

A Supersedeas Allowed in the Case of George McDonald.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The United States court of appeals today allowed a supersedeas in the case of George M. McDonald, the president of the Guarantee Investment company, and his sentence of eleven months will be stayed pending a decision on appeal. McDonald was released on $5,000 bail.

THREATEN BLOODSHED.

Tramps Will Ridcule Brutal Passenger Trains.

TOLEDO, Ariz., Dec. 8.—The order of the Southern Pacific railroad that no tramps will be allowed to ride on freight trains may result in bloodshed. There are 145 tramps camped at Lordsburg, who threaten to derail passenger trains if the order is enforced.

A RECEIVER APPOINTED

For the Ohio Chemical Company at Lima.

LIMA, Ohio, Dec. 8.—A receiver was appointed today for the Ohio Chemical company. The company has done an immense business all over the country selling so-called bi-chloride of gold tablets for drunkenness and the tobacco habit.

Torpedo Companies.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—It is reported that torpedo companies are established in the French army, according to the plan adopted by the Russians. The duties of these torpedo companies, in war times, will be to guard the approaches to inland waters and to assist in submarine operations.

COMMODORE STANTON

Submits His Report on the Salute in the Harbor of Rio.

He Then Leaves for His Home to Await the Conclusions of Secretary Herbert.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Commodore Stanton called at the navy department this morning and submitted to the secretary his written report of the incident of his salute of Mello in the harbor of Rio. Having completed this duty and waiting orders, the commodore is at liberty to go where he pleases. He leaves this afternoon for his home in New London, simply leaving his address with the department. It is probable that Secretary Herbert will give out the report for publication at an early day, together with the conclusion reached.

Committees on program and arrangement were also chosen. The V. S.'s meet next year at Indianapolis in June.

Engineer Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—William A. Jones, who was killed by a farmer near Parkersburg, W. Va., Wednesday, was formerly a conductor on the Cliff House road here. He left San Francisco in July to visit relatives in North Carolina. He was subject to epileptic fits.

Gold to Germany.

WALL STREET, Dec. 8.—10:30 a. m.—The first of the anticipated engagements of gold for Europe has been made. Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. have just announced that they will ship $300,000 in gold to Germany by the steamer sailing tomorrow.

LAWYERS TALKING.

The Cryo Murder Case Nearing an End.

It Will Go to the Jury Late This After noon—Dressing on the Verdict.

The argument in the case of the state against Hugh Cryo for the murder of Leonidas Boyer was begun yesterday by J. M. Robinson for the state. J. R. Bitlinger then spoke for the defense and was followed by Judge W. C. Colerick, who finished at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, when Prosecuting Attorney F. C. Colerick began the closing speech. All the attorneys made excellent pleas and held the large crowd of spectators in the court room interested listeners.

The case will get to the jury before 5 o'clock. Speculation as to the verdict does not agree. Some go so far as to think that the prisoner will be acquitted on the ground that he was insane with rage when he shot the man who killed his father, and that he did what a devoted son would do. Others say the evidence is strong against Cryo and that he will be sent up for a term of ten years. There are others still who say that the sentence will be a light one—less than five years

COURT NOTICES.

John Langard, the grocer, was indicted at Indianapolis for not paying for his liquor license within the specified time.

The county commissioners yesterday established the Bushrod road, situated on the line between Milan and Jefferson township. They also appointed receivers on the Markham road, in Adams township.

In Justice Ryan's office August Beckets, Joseph Beckets and Charles and John Millhouse were on trial for the Force street riot. The squire withholds his decision until Monday next.

James J. Southern and Ellis A. Clear, Wm. G. Frederick and Erskine M. Myers have been licensed to wed. This morning, at the clerk's office, Justice Harry Francs united in marriage the last named young couple.

SENSATIONAL SUIT.

An Ex-Governor and Ex-State Auditor in It.

Charged With Fraudulently Obtaining Immense Tracts of Pine Lands in Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8.—A very important pine land decision has been filed at Princeton in the district court today. It was charged that frauds had been committed in the securing of pine from the state by C. A. Smith & Co., of Minneapolis, and suit was brought by the state to recover damages. The whole matter involves not only this big lumber company, of which ex-Governor John S. Pillsbury, is a member, but also State Auditor Bierman, who is a state land commissioner. The decision announced today is in favor of the state. This suit was instituted in accordance with a resolution introduced in the last legislature by Representative R. C. Dunn, of Princeton.

GEORGE J. GOULD

Consults With Supt. Byrnes Regarding Zella Nicolaus.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—George J. Gould called at police headquarters today and had a long talk with Supt Byrnes. The superintendent afterwards said that Mr. Gould's visit was in relation to the suit which Mrs. Zella Nicolaus has brought to recover $40,000 from Mr. Gould. Mr. Gould himself declined to be interviewed, saying that he had already told all that there was to tell.

YOUNG PENN VERY ILL.

Contracted a Cold From Exposure and Now Has Pneumonia.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—D. R. Penn, jr., son of ex-Governor Penn, of Louisiana, who was a member of the world's fair national commission, is dangerously ill at the Palmer house.

Young Mr. Penn took part in a skating party at the world's fair grounds a week ago and breaking through the ice was so severely chilled that pneumonia developed today.

FLED WITH THE CASH.

A Vienna Banker Gets Away With a Big Sum.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A dispatch to the St. James Gazette, from Vienna, says that a sensation has been caused in that city by the disappearance of a well known banker, who is said to have defrauded his clients out of 2,000,000 florins. It is added that the defaulting banker has fled to South America.

THE ARAWA ARRIVES.

A Heavy Fog Prevents Her Entrance in the Harbor.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 8.—The steamship Arawa, from Honolulu, was reported late last night as having arrived in the straits. Various Puget Sound points reported a heavy fog prevailing, and no prospect of the Arawa making port before daylight, if then.

LOCAL LINES.

Frank Dreger has escaped from the Richmond Insane asylum for the eleventh time.

Editor James Mitchell, of the Dispatch, was removed to the hospital last night by his friends. His condition is still serious.

Peter Bunk, a Pittsburg company employe, was badly injured today while lifting some heavy material. Dr. Geo. Siemon attended.

TO HELP THE NEEDY.

Citizens Organize for the Relief of the Poor.

An Executive Committee Appointed to Begin the Work—Many Good Suggestions Offered.

Last evening, in the city council chamber, a meeting of a committee of citizens took place. The committee had been selected by the mayor for the purpose of conferring and suggesting plans whereby the city could, during the winter months, look after and properly provide for the worthy poor.

The meeting was fairly well attended and those who could not attend sent excuses. The meeting was called to order by Mayor Zollinger and S. M. Foster selected chairman. A. L. Friend was chosen secretary.

Col. D. N. Foster suggested that temporary headquarters be made at the old central engine house, where a warm room and a telephone would be in charge of some one who could look after those who applied and see that they were relieved. He suggested a bureau for labor, where those having labor to give out could leave their addresses and those seeking work could apply. Mr. Foster thought the citizens committee could advantageously co operate with the relief union.

Henry Paul said the poor of the city were divided into three classes. There were the very poor, for whom the county was always compelled to be looking after; then there were the floating poor, or tramps as they are commonly called, and the third class is those who are temporarily in need on account of lack of work during the summer and stringency of the times. How to reach all these classes and give to each a just proportion was the question. Mr. Paul suggested that the city inaugurate a system of public improvement, which would give employment to a large number of men during the winter.

Councilman Hamm had a plan to establish a city infirmary. This could be done under the city charter. Hamilton was to have a number of salaried officers establish headquarters and the city appropriate funds.

City Attorney Shambaugh was present and made a lengthy argument against the city making any move as a corporation. He said the tax levy for 1894 had been made and any increased expense at the present time would mean that just so much work laid out for next summer would have to be dispensed with.

Most of the members present were of the opinion that it would be better to dispense with what was to be done next summer and relieve the poor just now, when they needed it. When people were hungry arguments and objections were not the thing. The present case was an emergency and the city could and should meet it. By the city taking charge of the matter all would be selected alike. Mr. Shambaugh's objection to the city taking action was the fact that the present city council failed to turn over the city to their successors next spring without a cent of indebtedness.

Charles Bushnell the city should do this work and raise the money. The present charitable organizations should be helped, as they were already organized and knew who were needy. It looked to Mr. Bash foolish to say that we wanted to turn over the city free of debt next spring, while people were starving.

Col. D. N. Foster moved that an executive committee of five be appointed to take hold and have charge of the entire charitable work.

A Friend seconded the motion to appoint the executive committee of five and Chairman Foster appointed as that committee J. D. Bond, Louis Fox, Henry C. Paul, E. A. K. Hackett and John W. White. On motion Mr. Foster was added to the committee. Col. Zollinger agreed to co-operate with the committee in a general way, although he will not have a vote.

The gentlemen adjourned to meet again at the call of the executive committee.

M. A. CARVIN.

A Former Fort Wayne Boy Now Clerk of the Courts at Wichita, Kas.

At the recent election held in Kansas M. A. Carvin, a former Fort Wayne boy, was re elected clerk of the courts of Sedgewick county, Kansas, the county in which Wichita is situated, an office that he has creditably filled for the last two years. In speaking of him the Wichita Daily Eagle says: "M. A. Carvin was born thirty five years ago near Fort Wayne, Ind. His father, a gallant soldier, died in the army, and before the youth was seven years old he was without a father or mother. The little lad was bound to a farmer with the conditions that he should get three months schooling every year, and this is the way he had to fight the battle of life. He had a brave and honest heart and the deathbed prayer of his mother followed him in the darkest hour of his trials. When a boy he lost his health and to regain it he sought Texas, Colorado and other places, through which he worked his way manfully and honestly and finally came to Kansas. He has been county clerk for two years and during that time has won the esteem of all and filled the office faithfully."

Postponed Again.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 8.—The proposed foot ball match between the Princeton college and Washington Athletic club teams, which was to be played in Union park on Saturday, is off. It is stated that the faculty of Princeton object to the college boys entering into any more foot ball games this season.

REVENUE COLLECTOR.

Hon. W. H. Harkins, of Portland, Captures the Plum.

Collector Bracken Selects Him to Take Charge of This Revenue District.

PORTLAND, Ind., Dec. 8.—Hon. Wm. H. Harkins, of this city, was notified today of his appointment as United States revenue collector for the Sixth district. Harkins is a member of the state legislature.

The above telegram comes to THE SENTINEL over our Associated Press wires. The position to which Mr. Harkins has been appointed is deputy collector of the fifth division of the Sixth district, in place of W. O. Butler, who has filled the position for the last four years. It is the division of which Fort Wayne is a part and is the office which P. J. Fallon, Captain Charles Reese, Frank Rencker and George Ward were seeking to get. The position pays $1,000 a year salary and $900 a year for traveling expenses, the latter being expended by the officer in traveling around the district in the discharge of his duties.

Soon after the telegram was received here THE SENTINEL showed it to Mr. A. G. Keel, who is the deputy collector of the inspection department of this district. It was the first notice that he had that an appointment had been made. He said that Mr. Harkins would probably take the office as soon as the necessary bond had been executed, and that it did not necessitate his removal to this city. His duties were to travel over this division of the district.

Captain Reese, said Mr. Keel, has not yet taken charge of the deputy collectorship of the stamp department. He will probably, however, do so soon. Until then I remain in charge of the office. His position and that to which Mr. Harkins has been appointed are about equal. The one is not under the other in authority, as many suppose, but are both deputy collectorships under Mr. Bracken and have separate and different duties to perform, the one being independent of the other.

PLAN OF ACTION.

Minister Thurston Makes a Sensational Statement.

The Hawaiian Provisional Government Won't Permit Queen Lil to Take the Throne.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8.—Minister Thurston, before leaving for Honolulu, told some of the friends of the provisional government that the plan of action had been agreed upon by the government and would be carried out. The provisional government has 1,100 men under arms who are ready to respond to the signal of the bell. This force will not be permitted to fire on the United States marines if they are landed.

Neither will the provisional government lay down its arms and leave the government building upon a request of Minister Willis, even after the marines are landed. The provisional government will remain until its members are arrested and taken out. It will resist any interference by any other than the armed force of the United States. With its military force at command it will not allow the supporters of the queen to enter the palace or disturb the peace of Honolulu.

This is the program as outlined by Minister Thurston to his friends here before departing for Honolulu. It is also positively asserted that Mr. Thurston is going to Honolulu, whatever may have been said regarding his visit to Chicago and San Francisco to look after Hawaiian affairs in those cities.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S BAZAR is a journal for the home. It gives the fullest and latest information about fashions; and its numerous illustrations, full-size patterns, and supplements are indispensible alike to the home dress maker and the professional modiste. No expense is spared to make its artistic attractiveness of the highest order. Its bright stories, amusing comedies, and thoughtful essays satisfy all tastes, and its last page summons a budget of wit and humor. In its weekly issues everything is included which is of interest to women. The serials for 1894 will be written by William Black and Walter Besant. Short stories will be written by Mary E. Wilkins, Maria Louise Pool, Ruth McEnery Stuart, Marion Harland, and others. Outdoor sports and indoor games, social entertainment, embroiderers and other interesting topics will receive constant attention. A new series is promised of "Coffee and Repartee."

Protestant Missions.

The amount of money contributed to the work of Protestant missions in the United States is very large. Here are some of the receipts for the year ended April 30, 1893, just reported:

Presbyterian board	$1,062,121 60
Congregational board	629,985 94
Methodist missionary society	1,270,000 00
Baptist missionary union	728,615 00
Episcopal missionary fund	237,498 89
Total	$3,928,555 33

The larger portion of this sum goes to foreign missions. The Methodists spend about forty-five per cent. of their receipts on home missions. The Presbyterians maintain a separate board of home missions, the receipts of which are not given in the account from which we collate these figures.

Brooklyn's Politics.

One of the amusing features of the recent landslide in Brooklyn is the election as state senator of a bartender named George A. Owens, over his democratic competitor and employer, Patrick H. McCarren. The latter was a candidate for re-election. His district has been so heavily democratic that the nomination of an opposing candidate was a mere matter of form. Nobody expected that Owens stood the ghost of a chance of being elected, and he himself looked upon his candidacy as a huge joke. But the landslide did the business. The democratic boss of the sample room was overwhelmingly defeated, and his republican bartender triumphantly elected. And of such is Brooklyn politics.

Tomorrow's Sentinel.

The Saturday's edition of THE SENTINEL is always one of the most attractive and interesting papers of the week, because it contains, in addition to the usual local and telegraph news of the day, a large amount of entertaining and instructive miscellaneous reading matter, and our subscribers are warm in their praises of its excellence.

Tomorrow THE SENTINEL will contain several illustrated articles from well known authors. These, with the fashion correspondence from New York, the secret society column, the children's and the religious departments, the sermon of Rev. Talmage and the always humorous letter of Bill Nye, cannot fail of entertaining all.

Giving Help to the Poor.

When you come to analyze men's feelings on the poor question very few are found who are not in hearty sympathy with any intelligent movement towards relieving suffering, and business men generally will be quick to indorse a form of charity that has the true ring of business. The indiscriminate giving of alms is not true charity. The giving must be characterized by intelligent discrimination.

Business men have not the time to hunt out cases and discriminate. They must take somebody's word for it. They contribute to charity benefits with some degree of reluctance because they don't know what is to be done with their money.

The bestowing of charity, however, through such societies as the Relief union, for instance, and others we might mention, is different. It means business separating the deserving from the undeserving. It means hunting work for the unemployed instead of aiding people in idleness. It means an intelligent study of the labor situation, providing employment for those unfortunates who are willing to work, but can't find employment. It means a labor clearing house, where employers can find deserving labor and information that will save them from imposition. It means that somebody will know who deserves public aid and who does not. There is system to the method. There is business sense in it. If those who give for charity know that their money will be judiciously expended, they will give freely and give liberally.

No Profit in Strikes.

The report of the secretary of internal affairs of Pennsylvania contains some figures of especial interest to employes. They show that during the last year there were in the state twenty-six strikes. The strikers numbered 4,585, and the total number involved in the trouble was 7,414. One of the chief causes of the strikes was the refusal of employers to recognize the Amalgamated Iron and Steel association and to accept its scale. Other strikes were for increase of wages, against reduction of wages, against rules of companies, for shorter hours, against non-union men, and against the introduction of machinery. Not counting the great Homestead dispute, the strikers lost $376,246 in wages. The Homestead laborers lost $1,250,000 and the state of Pennsylvania paid $140,256 for maintaining the national guard on police duty. The loss to employers is not given, but it must reach the millions. In addition there was a large loss to general business, and the grand total is enormous What was accomplished by this great sacrifice in wages and damage to business? Of the strikes three were successful, four succeeded in part and nineteen failed completely. The game was not worth the candle. Undoubtedly there are times when a strike against oppression and unjust exactions is unavoidable, but in general it may be said that much more satisfactory results can be obtained by more peaceful means. Strikes may be justifiable now and then, but they do not pay.

Mr. Coombs' Tariff Plan.

Congressman William J. Coombs of Brooklyn has formulated what he calls a "plan for an automatic, businesslike tariff," and has written it out in The Forum. He informs us in the beginning that the country has become tired of discussing the tariff, which appears to be a superfluous remark.

Mr. Coombs wants exactly a tariff for revenue. His scheme proposes to give us that without a yearly overhauling of import duties and the consequent disturbance of business. He would have, for instance, to begin at the beginning, an estimate made of the yearly expenses of the government over and above its internal receipts and its revenues from other sources. That sum being ascertained, how shall it be provided without disturbing the commercial interests of the country? The plan Mr. Coombs submits in answer to this question takes into consideration the interests of the manufacturer first of all, then of the importer, next of the laborer. Everybody but the farmer. Mr. Coombs has not a word for the agriculturist. Probably he forgot; or farmers are of no consequence.

To simplify matters, he would place all raw material that is to be used by manufacturers on the free list. That would include, of course, all the natural products of the soil. He would next place a sort of half tariff on half manufactured articles and a great big duty on wine, cigars and tobacco and a few articles of high luxury. On all other imports there would be fixed, under his plan, a regular ad valorem tariff rate. He considers the objection that this would necessitate a varying duty from year to year, according as the price of the articles varied. Mr. Coombs says he has investigated these varying prices for three years, and at no time was there a variation from one year to another of more than 5 per cent.

The different schedules of dutiable goods under the Coombs plan would be as follows:

Schedule A—To be composed of articles free from duty, including all raw materials necessary in the manufacture of goods.

Schedule B—To be composed of articles which, on account of their nature, should not pay a duty exceeding 10 per cent—mainly partially manufactured materials.

Schedule C—To be composed of articles, principally wine, spirits, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, upon which a duty must be charged sufficient at least to compensate manufacturers who pay a tax under internal revenue laws. Also of a few well defined articles of luxury, which will bear a rate of at least 40 per cent ad valorem.

Schedule D—To be known as the schedule for the equalization of labor cost, including machinery, which shall be made up from time to time in the manner specified.

Insurance For Railway Employees.

The failure of a large number of fancy insurance companies that were going to pay 10 per cent dividends a year to all who put money into them will perhaps call attention to the admirable systems of life insurance among certain large corporations, notably one or two railway organizations. For seven years the Pennsylvania road has had a system of insurance which provides for the care of a sick or disabled employee, and in case of his death for his burial and a sum of money to his family. In case of accident, free surgical attendance is provided for the injured man. The family of a deceased employee receives $1,250 as the maximum sum. The money for the insurance fund is contributed partly by the employees, partly by the company.

The English railway corporations have a system of insurance for their workers, which they are extending to take in the humblest day laborer. Each man contributes 2½ per cent of his wages annually, and the company pays as much more. The money thus raised is called the superannuation fund. The maximum period of service is 45 years. After a man has served one company that long he is retired on two-thirds pay for the rest of his life. If he stays so long as 10 years, he receives one-fourth his pay as a pension. If he leaves the company under 10 years' service, he gets back all the money he put into the fund, with 4 per cent interest. This is a good rate of interest for England.

Bazin, a French engineer, has invented a craft which, he delares, will travel over 30 miles an hour and cross the Atlantic in four days. His model shows a platform resting on eight monstrous wheels. The platform is the ship. The wheels will revolve partly in the water, partly within the flooring of the platform, and roll it along instead of having it come down into the water and glide along, as the present steamer does. The thing will be somewhat like the rolling or movable platform at the Chicago fair. Bazin declares that a ship built on his plan will not be nearly so expensive as the present ocean flyers are.

In Georgia has been presented recently the unique spectacle of political campaign meetings that open with prayer. Ex-Congressman Thomas E. Watson made a series of 37 stump speeches lately for the People's Party, and every one of the meetings began with prayer. A political party might do worse than to open its campaign with prayer—much worse.

Said Emperor William to his subjects when he enlarged the German army: "It will now be your foremost task and common labor to care for the raising of means to cover the increased expense caused by the increased peace footing of the army." "Increased peace footing" is good.

Sallie McAllister, who died at Springfield, Ky., lately, weighed 695 pounds, yet she was only a private citizen. Sallie neglected her opportunity. She ought to have made a fortune in a dime museum on exhibition as the Matabele queen.

Charleston, W. Va., will now have a boom. Natural gas has been struck near there and will be piped to the city. The Kanawha salt works will reopen, and 500 men will find employment.

It is a satisfaction to know that a new goldfield has been found in Colorado at Buffalo Sloughs, 70 miles west of Colorado Springs. The gold is not of the highest grade, but there is plenty of it, such as it is, which is the main thing.

The next new mining city built in two weeks will be that at Buffalo Sloughs, Colorado. Within a few days after the discovery of gold a camp of 200 was already formed there.

FROM FAROFF LANDS.

THREE INTERESTING STORIES OF ADVENTURE AND CURIOUS INCIDENT.

The Self Exiled American Found In the Heart of Bleak Siberia—His Pathetic Tale of His Lost Russian Sweetheart—A Bank Robber and Murderer.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

At Provoska, in snowy Siberia, I found a native born American who had been there for 10 years, he said, living a wretched life amid the Russian exiles. He was not in any way an offender against the Russian government, and he had voluntarily banished himself to that miserable existence, shut himself off from the world, doomed himself to a living death. But, strangest of all, he seemed to care very little for the great events that had happened in the world since his self inflicted isolation began. He was not on friendly terms with those about him, or, if friendly, was not familiar at least.

I felt certain the man had a story, and I resolved to draw it from his lips, if possible. Although I was a countryman of his, he received me rather coldly, as if he cared no more to look upon the face of an American than he did to gaze at the unfortunate beings who had been exiled by their government to that lonely Siberian village. For some time he did not even condescend to give me his name, but during my stay in Provoska I used to go over every afternoon and smoke with him, and I gradually broke down the barrier of his taciturnity.

One day, as we sat smoking in the single room of the poor hut that served him as home, he suddenly asked:

"Well, what do you think of me?"

I was startled, but I countered with another question:

"What do you mean?"

He grunted: "I see you have been studying me ever since you came here, and I suppose you have formed an opinion. Perhaps you take me for a fool?"

"Not at all."

"Well, I wouldn't care if you did. You haven't tried to pry into my business, and I don't mind telling you why I am here. I am waiting for the woman who promised to become my wife."

I did not attempt to conceal my surprise, and in response to my questions he said:

"She is an exile, and she is somewhere in the valley of Algafital, or was when I last heard of her. She knows I am here, and she will come to me when the term of her banishment expires."

"How much longer will that be?"

"Ten years more."

I shuddered at the thought of it. Another weary half score of years to be spent in that prison land! It was horrible! The man before me was at least 40 years of age, and the snows of the long Siberian winters had begun to sprinkle his black hair with streaks of gray.

And the woman—or girl! What must those terrible years mean to her! What a change they would bring about in her!

"What was her offense?"

"She was the sister of a man who plotted against the government."

"Nothing more?"

"Nothing more. I met her in St. Petersburg and fell in love with her. Singularly enough, my affection was reciprocated, and she had promised to become my wife, when without warning, the calamity fell upon her. Her brother is in the silver mines of Nertschinks, and she is near him. His sentence is for life."

"If you will pardon me the question, how old was she when she was banished?"

"Twenty-three."

"Then she is now 33, and in 10 years more she will be 43. From the time you saw her last till you see her again she will have changed from a girl to a middle aged woman."

He bowed. "Yes," he said sadly, "and I shall have changed as well."

Finally, for the first time, he told me his own name. It was Wallace J. Carter, and he claimed to be a native of Rahway, N. J. After this talk he relapsed into taciturnity once more, and I could not draw anything from him, although I often tried. He finally grew sullen when I reverted to the subject, which was plainly distasteful to him, and at last I gave it up.

I carried a detective camera with me, and one day I obtained a fair snap shot at his face without his knowing anything of it. I preserved the plate and had it developed when I arrived at a place where it was possible. This picture I now have in my possession, and last fall, with it tucked in the breast pocket of my coat, I set out to see if I could learn anything of Wallace J. Carter in Rahway.

I was unsuccessful. No one in the town knew anything of the man or had ever heard of him. As he had hinted that he was a wealthy and influential citizen in the United States and had fallen in love with Helen Valdon while traveling over the world for pleasure, it was a singular thing no one should know anything of him in the town he claimed to hail from.

Often as I thought of the singular tale this self exiled man had told me I fancied I could detect discrepancies in it. I remembered him as he bade me goodby the day my tarantass took me out of Provoska, and I was certain a look of relief rested on his face. It seemed as if he had feared me, although why this should be I could not understand.

It came about that I took a fancy to carry his picture down to Superintendent Byrnes at police headquarters and ask him what he thought of it.

"My dear sir!" cried the superintendent the moment his eyes rested on the picture, "that is a very good likeness of Nipper Mike, the slickest bank burglar who ever slipped through the fingers of the police of this country. His last job was the robbery of the B—— bank in 1883, at which time he accidentally killed the cashier. There is still a standing reward for his capture. That beard has altered his appearance somewhat, but I should say it is Nipper Mike, just the same. Where did you get this?"

When I had told him, he said:

"The fellow is safe as long as he remains in that part of Siberia, but I fancy the time will come when he will sneak back to America, and I shall get my fingers on him."

Grogan's Appetite.

We had on board the African coast trader Wild Flower an Irishman of the name of Terence Grogan, who was the unrivaled possessor of a most insatiable appetite. He confessed to me that he had never been able to eat all he craved, although he had often eaten until he could swallow no more, his stomach being filled to its limit.

The salt food obtained aboard ship had proved anything but satisfactory to him, and when we reached Kroomin's Land, which extends from Sherboro to Cape Palmas, he was, as he expressed it, "hoongry crazy for a square male, begobs!"

It did not take Grogan's appetite long to get him into trouble of a singular and alarming nature. On one of the Irishman's expeditions ashore he was accompanied by the cabin boy alone, as the Kroomans were a peaceable and friendly disposed race. It was not more than an hour after their departure, however, before the boy came rowing madly back to the ship, nearly frightened out of his senses, declaring the natives had seized Grogan and were about to put him to death.

Being unable to get the particulars from the lad, Captain Lord lost little time in arming a boatload of men and getting ashore to investigate.

We found the native village in an uproar. Men and women were running about, uttering shrill cries, beating on their breasts and screaming wildly, dogs were barking, and the "pompom" of a great drum added to the babel. Captain Lord led us forward at a run, and we proceeded to the very center of the village, where we found a great mob assembled, with Grogan a captive in their midst. The Irishman was nearly frightened out of his wits, as well he might be, and when he saw us he shouted:

"Hilip, b'gat! Be the holy St. Denis, it's a dead man I'd been in naither tin minutes!"

The captain confronted the chief of the village and demanded to know what it was all about. This dignitary haughtily informed him that the sailor had offended and robbed the soul of a dead warrior by eating from the dead man's grave the food that had been placed there for the consumption of said dead man while he was on his journey to the land of the hereafter. According to the law of the Kroomans, such an offense was punishable with death, and the executioner should be the dead man's nearest relative.

We saw in a moment that Grogan's peril was great, and it looked as if a bloody encounter would take place if we tried to rescue him, for the fighting men of the village, armed to the teeth, had gathered about us and were scowling and muttering in a manner that showed that the worst proclivities of those usually peaceable natives had been aroused.

Captain Lord was too shrewd to fight if the sailor could be saved in any other way, and he soon found himself face to face with the nearest relative of the dead man, who proved to be the warrior's mother, a frightful looking old hag. At first the old woman seemed fairly insane with her fury and thirst for the blood of the man who had desecrated the grave of her son and robbed him of the food he required in his journey to the spirit land, but Captain Lord was a Yankee, and a shrewd one at that, and he straightway began to "dicker" with her.

Twenty minutes later, the captain had succeeded in purchasing Grogan's life with about 70 cents' worth of glass beads, brass bracelets and bells that would tinkle. He kept decorating the old hag with them and holding up a cheap mirror for her to admire herself in, and when she finally gave a horrible grin of delight at her bedizened appearance we knew Grogan would be spared.

We lost no time in getting him out of the village and down to the boat, for some of the natives were not at all pleased with the result of Captain Lord's appeal to the wronged mother's greed and vanity. As we were pulling back to the Wild Flower, the captain said:

"Hereafter, Grogan, you will know exactly what your life is worth. It was bought for 70 cents this time."

"Enough to buy a square male anywhere," moaned the Irishman, with apparent earnestness. "An Oi didn't hev toime to eat half them were in the pot before they grabbed me by the scuff av th' neck an dragged me futher their onld town. It's starvin Oi am this blissid minute!"

What They Ate.

"South American niggers'll eat anything," declared the old ship steward, with an expression of unfeigned disgust on his leathery face. "I found that out on my first voyage to Brazil; and I've been right careful about what I put inside of me whenever we've laid to in any South American port. Tell ye what cured me:

"We was anchored off Para, and them Brazilian niggers used to come rowing out round the ship in search of work of any kind, while the respectable white folks left us alone. There was one old fellow that could speak English, and one day he asked me did I want some eels. He said he could get me some good ones, and I made a trade with him to bring me a big mess, for I knew there was not a man aboard who would not be glad to get a change from salt grub.

"The next day he brought the eels. They were all dressed, and fine looking fellows they were. I cooked them, and I tell you we had a feast on the Sarah Gordon. I never tasted eels that were better in all my life, and everybody aboard enjoyed them.

"The following day the same old fellow turned up and asked me if we wanted some more eels. I was leaning over the port rail, with the skipper close at hand. I asked him if he could bring me some as good ones as the first lot, and he said he could.

"'What kind will you have, suh, land eels or water eels?' he questioned.

"I looked at the cap'n, and the cap'n looked at me.

"'What kind was the others we had?' I asked.

"'Them was land eels, sur,' he answered.

"In about three seconds the cap'n was leanin over the rail, a-runnin his finger down his throat, and I was doin the same. We didn't stop to think the eels was pretty well digested by that time, and we both felt sick enough to die.

"Land eels! Holy smoke! We'd been eating snakes!" GILBERT PATTEN.

A Difficult Order.

A man with a bald spot on the top of his head and very little hair on the sides of his cranium went into a Pittsburg barber shop, and after the tonsorial artist had shaved him the customer was asked:

"Hair cut, sir?"

"Yes," he replied.

"How will you have it cut, sir?"

"Football style."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

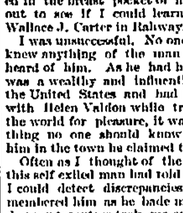
This world will never be entirely satisfactory until some woman who believes in wearing one dress until it is worn out becomes a leader of fashion.—Atchison Globe.



As good as new—that's the condition of liver, stomach and bowels, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets have done their work. It's a work that isn't finished when you've stopped taking them, either. It's lasting. They cure, as well as relieve. And it's all done so mildly and gently! There's none of the violence that went with the old-time pill. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative—three to four act as a cathartic. Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks and derangements of the stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved and cured. As a Liver Pill, they're unequaled. They're purely vegetable, perfectly harmless—the smallest, cheapest, and easiest to take.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?

That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

MATE LEROY DESCRIBES NOVEL COSTUMES FOR FANCY DRESS BALLS.

Many Classical and Semiclassical Gowns Worn—Alleged Turkish Costumes—Heroines From History—The Rage For "Louis the Something or Other."

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

Fancy dress balls are planned for very many of the dances of this season, both for grown people and for children. It is but five short years ago that a lovely little lady of my acquaintance wore an 1830 dress that had been laid away in lavender. It had been the "second day" dress of her great-aunt's wedding outfit, and everybody thought it so delightfully quaint. Now the 1830 costume is just the thing for ball gowns for this winter. So an authentic 1830 gown will hardly answer for a fancy costume this winter, but perhaps some ladies can go further back than that in the dim and dusty records of the past and bring a great-grandmother's frock from the old cedar press in the garret. If not, there are intelligent costumers who can supply an unlimited amount of ancestral silks, and, what is better, keep the secret.

Fancy dress balls certainly have a charm all their own, and in many respects are boons of priceless worth to some men and women. Some others suffer, but as long as the fiat has gone forth let us all make the best of it, and let the faithful writer of what to wear and how to wear it have her say. Among the prettiest of the designs for the children is that old favorite—Little Red Riding Hood. She must have the little red cape with its gathered hood, which may fall back on the shoulders or be drawn up over the head. The rest of the costume doesn't matter.

Then there is sweet, sleepy little Bo Peep and Goody Two Shoes, Mother Hubbard, Cinderella and all the long list of old friends made familiar by many pictures and many legends, all, however, telling the same old tales. Those are easy to copy and never fail to please both wearers and beholders, for is it not fairyland made real, and are not the rosy wearers as lovely as any fairy queen? The boys can be Prince Charmings, "with beautiful eyes," or Tommy Tuckers or Simple Simons or Little Boy Blue. We know them all, our fathers and mothers and their fathers and mothers knew them, and our children and children's children will delight in them. So let there be plenty of those dear little boys, and don't mind the horns!

All these costumes are easy to reproduce. We have but to follow tradition, and in fact it would be well nigh impossible to imagine anything that has not been before. But little Cupids with short skirts and warm wraps, from which the snowy wings protrude, are too cunning to forget. We must make allowances for climate when we dress our Cupids, for the original lived in a warmer country and was not subject to croup. If Cupid compromises on a pretty short kilt and has his wings all feathered out and the bow and arrows, we will love him just as much as if he wore nothing but his smile.

The what we may call "fancy" dress is made up from several ideas wrought in together. One of this style is called Dresden shepherdess. There was a skirt of pink taffeta, with a wreath of green grapes and foliage around the bottom above a flounce. There was a drapery of blue velvet around the hips, and another around the shoulders, held by masses of grapes and foliage. On the head was a tiny hat trimmed with vine leaves. The young lady is to wear long suede gloves and carry a fancy staff. She might call herself a bacchante or vintage or almost anything, and nobody would say anything, unless to admire the outfit.

Another very pretty, though not strikingly novel character, was Priscilla. The dress was short to the ankle and rather scant. It was of a quaint old pattern of silk, such as our American looms are now reproducing with much success. Around the bottom were two gathered blue silk ruffles. The silk is blue "paudusoy," with pink stripes and roses between them. Around the waist is a blue sash tied in the back with a big bow and with long ends. The low "infant" waist has a puffed border of blue silk. There is a reticule of the same material as the dress, and if it be possible a pair of old fashioned hoop earrings are worn. There are short tips in the hair of the color of the dress. This is a very quaint and taking frock and becoming too. The fair young wearer of this gown should borrow grandma's old fashioned locket or big watch with its long slender chain, if she has a grandmother; if not, let her ask her great-grandmother.

The small girl, say, from 10 to 12, can look pretty and sweet as a little Alsatian flower seller. Her gown should be of velvet or velutina, with narrow silk ruffles. Black or some dark color should be preferred. A tiny white apron, with lace and ribbon, adds piquancy. The bodice is of velvet, with a silk inset in the front in a light color to simulate a low corsage, and this is to be bordered with a wide fall of lace. There are to be an Alsatian bow on the head and a bunch of flowers, and a tiny basket and bouquet are to be carried. This is a very effective little character dress.

As to the dresses for the big sisters and young mothers, they have a limitless choice—that is, as far as their money will go. I think, as well as I can judge by what I have seen and can hear, that there will be many classical and semiclassical gowns worn, and quite a large variety will date from the queens of Egypt—with certain modifications, very particularly in the matter of shoes and hosiery. It seems that stockings and shoes were not in the fashion illustrations in the days of the pharoahs, and the ladies went barefoot or wore sandals. In these days the ladies wear shoes, and they have worn them so long that their feet are generally so ugly that they can't go barefoot, much as they might like to. So they wear flesh colored openwork stockings and low slippers and feel their duty done in that they have done their best.

After the Egyptian comes the modern oriental fancy dress, and there is a queer sort of an outfit, a hermaphrodite costume called Turkish. I have yet to see a genuine Turkish costume at a theater or fancy dress function. If any lady wants to know exactly how a Turkish costume looks at home and on the promenade I will tell her if she will write me, care of this paper. She could at least have the merit of accuracy if no more. The majority seem to take their ideas from the comic opera of "Said Pasha," and the Lord only knows where they got those costumes, for I don't. There are some pretty and quite novel ideas in the Tartar women's costumes, also those of Albania and Montenegro and one or two of the Greek islands, where the women keep to the national costume as it has always existed.

All these fashions—if so they can be called—are becoming and effective, being bright with color and embroidery. Then there are the usual poetic Nights and Mornings, but the very best idea shown so far is that several ladies who can do so have taken favorite heroines from history and will dress to sustain those characters. One beautiful young lady will represent La Fille du Roland, after Bornier's poem. Her no less beautiful but blond sister is to be Boadicea. There is, it seems to me, something in a plan of this kind, for the wearer of such names and costumes must have studied and thought much before daring to assume the character.

The last really grand fancy dress ball in New York was that given by the late William H. Vanderbilt, and that was talked of for years as the greatest thing of the kind ever done in this country. If report speaks true, there will be one soon after the holidays that will eclipse that.

I think we are drifting into another historical period in the way of fashion, and soon we shall hear nothing but Louis the something or other, for one tells you one thing and one another, but the fact remains that there is an undefinable something in the air that speaks of evolution. It is something like the "dissolving view" pictures which change imperceptibly. There are hats and bonnets—forerunners of the fearful and wonderful things we see in old pictures, and were I a betting person I would wager that inside of two years we will all be raving over their beauty. I have now before me one with a suspicious poky brim and beflowered crown, and we may expect to see that idea expanded and elaborated upon until we at least get the worth of our money in material, which we haven't been doing for many seasons.

With such shaped hats and bonnets there comes a slight change in coats and in gowns. We see velvet coats with vests of silk in tobacco patterns and with sharply pointed revers. We see the skirts to the coats grow fuller. We note the drop cuffs, and we come across choice things set aside for those who love to lead in everything. We find these regular coats with big buttons and with deep vests of white or maize satin embroidered with gold. These jackets or coats are almost exactly like those we see in pictures of the time of the Louis whoever he was. Anyhow these coats are very handsome, but it seems to me that white wigs belong with them.

Let me leave the question of what is going to be and tell what is just now. One of them is an imported gown for ordinary wear belonging to Mrs. Frank Leslie. It is of prune cloth, without any trimming on the skirt with the exception of a narrow prune and white twisted silk cord, which is sewed down the seams and around the bottom. The waist is of reps in prune and black, and so are the graceful gigot sleeves. There is a pointed effect in front, and two revers of the broadcloth quite plain. The whole gown is a model of quiet elegance. Mrs. Leslie has just finished sitting for a bust in marble and has also had a model of her foot taken. She wears a No. 13 shoe. One lady asked her if the foot was to be for a paperweight, but I think it is to be mounted for a breastpin, as it wouldn't do much service as a paperweight on the pile of papers that usually incumbers her desk.

Mrs. Kendal has had her own good right arm modeled, and in warm weather she lays the cold but shapely thing down in front of the fireplace. What she does with it in winter we are not allowed to know, and just for that reason all the women ask her, not out of curiosity at all, but just because they would so like to know. But she never tells. MATE LEROY.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

The meeting of the American Federation of Labor, which will convene in Chicago next Monday, promises a merry little war, if all reports are true, between the east and west, when it comes to the election of officers. Nearly all the eastern people so are already on the field. The western people so an Associated Press dispatch reads, will demand the transfer of headquarters from New York to Chicago. It is also said that the opposition to the re-election of President Gompers will be strong, and that the westerners will endeavor to elect T. J. Griffin, of Chicago, as his successor. The re-election of Secretary Chris. Evans will also be opposed, it is said, and an attempt will be made to supplant him with James Linehan, of Chicago. "Sandy" Drummond will represent Fort Wayne at the meeting.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Boilermaker Julian Zurbrugg is sick and off duty.

Superintendent C. D. Law went east this morning.

Pittsburg engines 21 and 153 went into the shops for repairs today.

Superintendent G. L. Potter will leave this evening for Pittsburg.

Switchman Alex Thesenett, of the Pittsburg, is suffering with the grip.

Harry Shafer, Pittsburg passenger brakeman, is off duty on account of sickness.

The railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A. at Logansport has formed a ladies' auxiliary.

The Electric Light company shipped a 3,000 Wood alternating dynamo to Baltimore, Md.

Charles Paul, night watchman at Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, is sick and off duty.

Engineer C. Adams and Fireman W. Dexter, of the Pittsburg, are off duty on account of sickness.

The Pittsburg pay car will arrive in this city Sunday, December 17, and will pay the employes the following day.

Henry Nees resumed work in the Pittsburg copper shop this morning, having recovered from his recent illness.

Yard Foreman James Hattnett, of the Wabash road, has recovered from an attack of the grip and is working again.

Charles Ripps, boilermaker at the Bass works, has returned from Columbia City, where he repaired some machinery.

A. G. F. Wichman, manager of the Anthony Wayne Manufacturing company, has gone east to look after some business affairs.

John Thompson, who met with an accident at the Bass machine works Tuesday afternoon, is much improved, and will soon be able to again resume his position.

H. G. Rieeper, boilermaker at the Wabash shops, was painfully injured this morning. While working with a hammer and chisel he struck his left thumb, breaking the bones and mashing the flesh into a pulp.

Michael Horen and Edward Rudesail, of Lafayette, got in a quarrel in a saloon last Wednesday when the latter pulled a revolver and shot the former, killing him. Horen was a brakeman and Rudesail an engineer on the Monon road.

The Pennsylvania company has graciously placed a coach at the disposal of the friends of the late James O. Barlees who wish to attend the funeral. The coach will be attached to the Crestline accommodation, which will leave the depot at 7:05 o'clock tomorrow morning. Returning the coach will be attached to the first west bound train after the funeral.

Logansport Journal: "Freight loadings on the Panhandle is so heavy that it requires every locomotive to handle it. On account of the snow and cold weather a locomotive pulls but 75 per cent. of her regular capacity, on which account more trains are on the road now than there were a few weeks ago."

STATE NEWS.

Ernest Schwarzin, a well known business man of Richmond, is reported mysteriously missing.

Mrs. Robert J. Bruce and two children, of Logansport, were dangerously prostrated by escaping gas.

The Rev. M. L. Reynolds, pastor of the Free Methodist church on the Ohio side of Union City, is dead.

A popular club at Connersville, is known as the "Ta Kuahky." The words are Russian, meaning good appetite.

The charges which were filed against Police Superintendent James Miller, of Muncie, by Martha Goddard, have been disproven.

The churches of Richmond have organized a movement looking to practical and aggressive work in the interest of temperance.

Harry Hoover, who escaped from jail at Fowler, knocking down the sheriff's wife in his flight, has been captured at Lebanon.

There was a cutting affray at Greenfield between Lewis Bliberry and Robert Gagen, in which Bliberry was dangerously injured. Gagen was placed under bonds.

Moses Troyer, of Allen township, Noble county, was kicked by a horse, breaking his arm and fracturing his skull. He died shortly after his condition was discovered by his family.

Harmon Heitman, of Seymour, several months ago was thrown from a pony, striking on his head. During the present week his mind gave way, the cause being traceable to the injury received at the time of the fall.

The coroner has returned a finding of murder in the case of Gus Kline, of Lyford City, who was shot in a saloon brawl by William Houseman. The last-named has been committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Will Fight a Duel.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—M. Dremont has been challenged to fight a duel by a reporter of Premier Casimir-Perier. The duel is on account of an article which M. Dremont wrote in the Libre Parole.

SENSATION AT TERRE HAUTE.

Professor of Latin in the High School Quits His Wife.

A dispatch from Sullivan, Ind., states that Prof. W. A. Narlowe of Terre Haute, professor of Latin in the Terre Haute high school and the talented author of a book known as "Heavenward," had discarded his young wife, formerly Clara Burton, after fourteen months of married life, and had sent her back to her parents at Sullivan with the only statement to her by way of explanation, that he no longer loved her and therefore did not want to live with her, caused an immense sensation thereabouts last week. Reporters at once flocked to the high school building, and Prof. Narlowe was shown the publication and requested to make a statement. He coolly read the dispatch shown him by the reporters which said that his young wife's grief was added to by the fact that she was soon to become a mother, and handing it back said: "I have nothing to say." He refused positively to say anything either by way of denial or defense of the story. Prof. Narlowe and his wife lived together in an elegant home in Terre Haute. Prof. Narlowe had known his wife since childhood. The story is generally credited. The school board will take action.

A SCOTCH TRAGEDY.

The Murder of Lieut. Hambrough Exciting Great Interest.

A London dispatch says that the Scottish crown authorities have failed to find any trace of the mysterious Edward Scott, who is wanted in connection with the alleged murder of Lieut. Hambrough, who was shot and killed while hunting on the Ardlamont estate in Argyllshire, and for which crime Alfred J. Monson is now under indictment and awaiting trial. They have searched in every direction for him, but have failed to secure the slightest clew that would lead to his arrest, and they have now offered a reward of £700 for information that will bring about his apprehension. He is described as having been known by the names of Davis, Sweeney and Scott, and being known in racing circles as "Long Ted." Detectives are watching all vessels sailing for European or American ports, thinking that he may attempt to flee the country. Monson will be placed on trial at the end of this month. As the time draws near for him to be placed in the dock to answer the charge of murder, interest in the case increases. The victim and his alleged murderer were well-known in society, and the fashionable world is greatly interested in the outcome of the trial. Monson's aristocratic connections will supply him with ample funds for his defense.

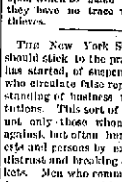
Miss Martha Cummings Missing.

Miss Martha Cummings, daughter of the late Robert Cummings, of Pittsburgh, Pa., left home five weeks ago to visit the World's Fair at Chicago. Until two weeks ago Miss Cummings communicated with her relatives regularly, but since then no word has been received. Her friends fear misfortune has overtaken her, and have left to seek for her.



MARTHA CUMMINGS.

Miss Cummings was of a deeply religious nature, a prominent worker in the Christian Endeavor society, and her mysterious absence has caused the greatest alarm.

Grounding Explorers Rock.

The crew of the whaler Aurora, which has just arrived at Dundee, report that they discovered in Baffin's bay the wreck of the schooner Ripple. This is the vessel in which two Swedish scientific explorers, Bjorling and Bolverkius, left St. Johns, N. F., in June, 1892. Their purpose was to collect specimens of the fauna of Greenland along Davis strait. The crew of the Dundee boat, after a search along the shore, found on a cairn near the spot where the Ripple had gone to pieces, one was covered with the remains of human bodies. Under the other cairn were found manuscripts and a note written in English asking the finder to send the papers to Baron Nordenskjold or the nearest consul. Near this cairn lay a skeleton, supposed to be that of Bjorlof or Kalvenius.

Drugged and Robbed.

Ben Hyams, a well-known London bookmaker, who had been attending the Liverpool autumn race meeting, was drugged at a leading Liverpool hotel the other day and while unconscious was robbed of £2,000. An investigation into the case has disclosed a long series of similar robberies of sportsmen at the Scarborough, Manchester and Doncaster race meetings. The chief victims have been bookmakers, who have been rendered unconscious by the use of ether and then robbed of their money. The evidence points to the crime being the work of an organized gang, the members of which follow the races and ingratiate themselves with the winning bookmakers. Though the fact has been established, the police have no evidence upon which to make arrests; in fact they have no trace whatever of the thieves.

The New York Stock Exchange should stick to the practice which it has started, of suspending members who circulate false reports about the standing of business men and institutions. This sort of lying damages not only those whom it is directed against, but often hurts other interests and persons by swelling general distrust and breaking down the markets. Men who commit such offenses deserve severe punishment.

SWIMMING IS GOOD.

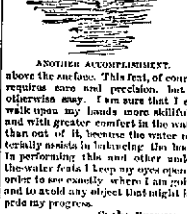
A MERMAID GIVES ADVICE TO BEGINNERS.

Clara Beckwith, the Water Queen, Urges All Her Sex to Adopt Swimming as a Means of Physical Development.

HAVING BEEN AUTHORITATIVELY informed that I was born in Lambeth, England, Oct. 28, 1865, I have long since accepted that assurance with passive resignation and incidentally refer to this most important period in my life's history only because I believe it to be a wise and excellent idea, when a task is undertaken, to begin at the beginning. There is no difficulty in learning how to swim. The subject of swimming has been my all-absorbing thought. It is no exaggeration to say that I am perfectly at home and conscious in the water. I love its cooling, bracing and invigorating influences. Among the greatest benefits I have derived from swimming is the remarkable preservation of my health in all seasons and under all conditions of changing climate, diet and surroundings.

Here are a few hints I would like to give to beginners. Don't try to learn at the ocean beach nor where the surf is heavy. Take your first lesson in a swimming pool or natatorium where the facilities are good and the surroundings safe. Seek first of all, to gain confidence, and do not attempt the strokes until you realize that you are not afraid of the water; a timid person, who from any cause becomes nervous or unduly excited, is apt to encourage cramps. When you become used to the water and feel the inspiration of self confidence, then you are in condition to learn the chest stroke, in which is involved the prime and fundamental principles of swimming. This must be acquired before any other stroke or manipulation is attempted.

It is almost as easy to float as to sink. The one great requisite is confidence. That acquired, all the rest is comparatively easy. The common fallacy to endeavor to make use of cork or kindred to assist in keeping the body above water. These may be of service for supporting the body while one is learning what is called the stroke. But you will never swim until you can place confidence in the power of the water to support you. Then swimming is a perfectly easy and simple operation. Keep your hands open, with the palms rather concave and the fingers close together, so that no water can pass through them. Then lean with your chest on the water, and as you throw your arms forward your body will assume a horizontal position just beneath the surface. With slow and steady motion let the legs follow the motion of the arms or act simultaneously with them. Then spread the hands so as to describe a half-circle, the elbows coming close to the body and then to the chest. Slow and steady is the rule to follow in learning. Speed will be acquired in time.



ANOTHER ACCOMPLISHMENT.

Keep your head well up, and in getting ready for each successive stroke draw back the legs by a simultaneous motion. Keep the feet wide apart, with the toes well turned out, and as you send out the arms kick the legs backwards and sideways to their full extent, keeping them separate till they have described as wide a circle as possible, the legs coming close together at the end of each stroke. Press against the water with the sole of the foot, and not with the toes, and you will make more easy and rapid progress. If the beginner is at all nervous he should get assistance from a friend. A good assistant will be found in a heavy plank, on which the swimmer may rest the hands, and so sustain himself, or push it before him as he proceeds. In choosing a bathing place the swimmer should avoid deep ponds, rocky and muddy streams and rapid rivers.

In the first attempt you will do little more than kick your legs and arms about. In a few days, however, you will become bolder.

Perhaps the easiest way of supporting the body in the water is to float or swim on the back. In the surf the beginner should keep his head to the billows, so as to rise as they reach him. In swimming on the back the position is the same as that in floating, except that the arms need not be stretched out. Keep the toes well turned out and the hands perfectly still and close to the sides. You will find that you will not sink, though the water will come half over your face.

In plain chest swimming the hands should be drawn up almost to the body, and then struck out right and left, perhaps as though you were going to kick in opposite directions.

Bring the feet together again and at the same time make a wide and forward sweep with the hands. To lessen the resistance of the water point the toes downward and keep the hands flat. In plain swimming you have to get all the support you can from the water, and, by keeping the hands flat, you necessarily increase the resting surface. Steadiness and endurance must be the first requisites of the young swimmer.

There are two styles of side swimming. The best way is to lay the face and body well down sideways in the water, with the mouth a little raised to enable you to breathe freely. Except the upper half of the face and the top of the shoulder the whole body should be under water. The upper hand is used as a sort of a cutwater, and with each stroke is sent out as far as possible, the other hand resting on the side, or only brought occasionally into use as a rudder to steady the body.

Swimming under water is as easy as on the surface. The method employed is precisely the same. You need not shut your eyes, though the natural tendency is to do so. When retaining your breath it becomes painful, raise your head out of the water, inhale the air quickly and repeat the experiment.

When a swimmer is attacked with cramp he should forcibly stretch out the limb and turn his toes up. This is almost a certain cure for cramp. At first, however, this fails, he should throw himself on his back and float until assistance comes. The most important of all is to retain presence of mind.

Seemingly, one of my most difficult aquatic acts is that of walking on my hands in the water, with the body extended upward and feet projecting above the surface. This feat, of course, requires care and precision, but is otherwise easy. I am sure that I can walk upon my hands more skillfully and with greater comfort in the water than out of it, because the water temporarily assists in balancing the body. In performing this and other under-the-water feats I keep my eyes open in order to see exactly where I am going and to avoid any object that might impede my progress.

CLARA BECKWITH.

This English Lord Chamberlain has suppressed a burlesque because it caricatured the Sultan of Turkey and thereby highly offended the Turkish Ambassador to St. James. The British lion can become the veriest shrinking cur when he likes, and at present it seems the unspeakable Turks hold the whip hand.

Get Into Blizzard.

Mr. J. F. Blaise, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part at that state during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaise had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe attack of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaise sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaise regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by druggists.

HAS GOT AN INTEREST NOW.

"Two commercial tourists of the pine board persuasion met in the Union depot the other day," says a writer.

"'Hello Charley,' says No. 1, 'I haven't seen you in an age. What are you doing now?'

"'Oh, I'm in the same old line,' responds No. 2.

"'With the same house?'

"'Yes, same old concern, but situated a little differently.'

"'How is that?'

"'Well, I've got an interest now.'

"'Is that so? How long since?'

"'Since the first of the month.'

"'Let me congratulate you.'

"'Yes, the old man told me I'd got to take an interest in the business or quit, so I took the interest.'"

That's What Our Readers Have Done.

They have taken an interest in our proposition to furnish them a magnificent series of photographic views of famous scenes throughout the world, but it was not forced upon them. They have done it as a matter of choice. They realized that "The Sentinel" was offering them a splendid opportunity, and one that in all probability would not pass their way again, and that have not needed coercion as the "pine board tourist" did to stir them to action.

Have You Attended to This Matter Yet?

If not, cut out the coupons regularly as they appear on this page from day to day and save them. Send any three coupons calling for the same part with TEN CENTS to

NEWS NOTES.

Mrs. Anna Druley, of 75 East Jefferson street, is recovering from the grip.

A meeting of the executive committee who are to have charge of relief measures for the poor, was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The gymnasium exhibition which was to have been given by the Y. M. C. A. at the Temple has been postponed until the second week in January.

Rev. J. S. Looper will deliver a discourse next Sabbath evening illustrated by the stereopticon, "St. Paul Among the Cypriots." Some fine music will be rendered.

At the meeting of Fort Wayne lodge No. 12, A. O. U. W. this evening, three candidates will be given the workman degree. Other important business will come before the lodge.

About 1 o'clock this morning Sergeant Borgman and Officer Rohrer raided Tillie Ince' house of ill-fame, on Pearl street, and captured eight individuals, all of whom paid.

Trades and Labor council holds a special meeting in their rooms on Monday evening to devise means to aid the poor of the working classes and co-operate with the city committee.

The Valparaiso Star says: "W. H. Tigar, of Fort Wayne, arrived in the city this afternoon. He is grand vice regent of the Royal Arcanum of the state, and comes to attend the meeting of the local lodge tonight."

The little daughter of Mrs. Bocholot, of 78 Dawson street, has entirely recovered from diphtheria. It is now three weeks since the girl was taken with the disease and none of the other children have been attacked. It is believed they will escape.

Before the Theosophical society last evening "Manas" was the subject for discussion. Dr. H. P. Buchman was the first speaker, he spoke of "Manas" and the cosmogoney. Henry Cohen followed and spoke on "Manas" and its relation to man. A. T. Luken spoke on the universal mind, or "Manas," and A. H. Furman closed with "Manas" and the astral senses.

Ovido Musin is easily the first violinist of the age; no one since Paquini held the world spell-bound with the touch of his bow, has attained to anything like the success and popularity now claimed by Musin. His rendering of Paganini's variations of Rossini's "Prayer of Moses" is simply marvellous. He will be at the Masonic Temple on the 14th of December.

The South Bend Times pays this compliment to Judge Zollars: "Judge Allan Zollars is an elegant gentleman, a first-class lawyer, and a true-blue democrat. As supreme judge for a term of six years he enjoyed the respect and confidence of the bar as well as of the people, and as attorney for the Pennsylvania railroad company, since his retirement from the bench, he has proved himself a lawyer of a high order of ability."

The Wabash Plain Dealer says: "At the meeting of St. Anastasia Mesnil lodge No 46, I. O. O. F., at the regular meeting last night, a resolution was unanimously passed extending Rev. A. E. Mahin and family, of Fort Wayne, the sympathy of the members of the lodge in their bereavement, caused by the death of Schuyler, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahin. Rev. Mahin was a member of the Odd Fellows' lodge while stationed here."

To those who have seen Corinne, the peerless little songstress and dancer, her peculiar historical Scotch brooch is interesting. It contains a large topaz stone, the largest known to be in existence, beautiful in color and perfect in shape, and is valued at $5,000. Corinne will appear with the Kimball Opera Comique company in her latest successful burlesque opera bouffe, "Hendrick Hudson," at the Masonic Temple tomorrow afternoon and night.

Last evening Sergeant Billy Borgman caught a negro trying to sell a lady's gossamer to a clothing firm on Barr street. The colored man was intoxicated and could not give an intelligible account of himself or how he came to have the gossamer. He was arrested and this morning, before the mayor, plead not guilty to the charge of stealing. He said he was enroute to Chicago from Boston and a friend had given him the gossamer to keep him warm. He was bound over.

The entertainment at Schroeder's hall last night for the benefit of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Markham was not largely attended. The receipts were only $11, and out of this Mr. Markham paid the expenses. A. J. Yon recited selections from "Macbeth" and "Richard III." Ernest Williams gave a cornet solo in first-class style. "Hickory Farm" was played by Schroeder's company, with Miss Virginia Markham in the leading role. Mr. Markham is negotiating for Randall hall to establish a theater, but has not quite decided to take it. Phoenix lodge has a lease of the hall and would probably sub lease it or sell the lease. Mr. Markham says there are two or three merchants who are backing him in the enterprise.

AT THE CLUB.

A Delightful Hop in Compliment to Visitors.

Helen, the bright little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Comparet, of Madison street, is quite ill.

Miss Leah Cohen returned yesterday from Cheyboygan, Mich., where she has been visiting her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fleming returned from Washington and other eastern cities last evening.

Mrs. Phil. B. Colerick, of East Berry street, will soon have as her guest Mrs. J. E. Turner, of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Duree and children have returned from a two weeks' visit to friends and relatives in Michigan.

Miss Jennie Baker, of Lucas, Ohio, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. George E. Graham, of 632 South Calhoun street.

The Don Sancho Pedro club will meet this evening at the home of the Misses Hollister, on West Williams street.

Miss Emma Helmick, daughter of J. C. Helmick, of New Haven, is the guest of Miss Minnie Graham, of 230 East Lewis street.

Mrs. Ezra Holliman and Mrs. Mary Baker, of Bellevue, Ohio, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chapman, of West Jefferson street.

At the progressive euchre party given at the Standard club last evening the prizes were won by Mrs. Dr. Rosenthal and Miss Birdie Hirsch.

Mrs. Sarah Weikart, of Fort Wayne, will leave Saturday for Toledo, Ohio, where she will visit her sister and relatives until after the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Henebery, of Peoria, who have been the guests of their daughter, Mrs. R. W. T. DeWald, left yesterday for Mexico to spend the winter.

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church, met this afternoon. Papers on "Syria" and "The South" were read by members of the society.

Miss Zella Widener, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, is visiting friends in the city. Miss Widener, a few years ago, graduated from the Central Grammar school in this city.

At the home of Miss Kittie Shondel, of 207 East Wayne street, the "Starlight" pedro club was organized with seventeen members. The club will meet every Friday evening.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Koons was last evening pleasantly invaded by a sleighing party from Williamsport. Among the guests were Misses Minnie Smith, Emma Gaston, Mary LaFollette, Minnie LaFollette, Sallie Sargent, Harmon Fuhrman, Clyde Firmen, Frank Hammond.

Last evening, at the home of the groom's parents, Engineer and Mrs. James Southern, of 278 South Webster street, occurred the marriage of Miss Ellie Close, daughter of the well known expressman, Henry C. Close, to Mr. James Southern. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walsh, at 7 o'clock, in the presence of a few guests.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Malcolm agreeably surprised them at their home, on West Williams street, Wednesday evening, and assisted in celebrating the crystal wedding anniversary of their host and hostess. Among those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames W. J. Vesey, E. F. Sites, Carl Bohne, H. C. Sites, Dr. and Mrs. O N. Heaton, Misses Zella Gillion, H. Williamson and Mr. Marion Bluck.

A pleasant surprise was tendered Miss Anna Dudenhofer, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jornod, of West Washington street, last evening. Those present were: Misses Anna and Alice Motherwell, Carrie and Rose Racquet, Millie, Anna, Katie, Carrie and Emma Rodenbeck, Madge Michaels, Madge Rodeheaver, Delia Schwartz, Nettie Secrist Louise Overly, Laura Henker, Alice Fitzgerald, Mrs. Wilbur, Messrs. Last evening a bobsleighing party, composed of Messrs and Mesdames C. L. Lang, of Dayton; Charles Centlivre, John Reuss, George D. Ohneck, Miss Velma Ohneck, Messrs. Louis Centlivre, Frank Lordier and Dr. H. C. Niermann were at the south depot to meet Mr. and Mrs. Franke, who were expected home from their bridal tour, but failed to put in an appearance. Notwithstanding the fact that the guests of honor were not present, the party enjoyed a drive about the city and finally gathered at the Fort Wayne club, where an excellent supper was served by the club caterer.

An especially delightful affair was the hop given last evening at the Fort Wayne club in compliment to Miss Louise Carnahan's charming guest, Miss Rena North, of Columbia, Pa. The dance program of twelve numbers was pleasantly interrupted by an elaborate collation served in the ladies' cafe. Miss North was very stately in an exquisite gown of white organdy. Miss Carnahan wore a pretty costume of pale green organdy. Among the guests present were Misses Rena North, Louise Carnahan, Georgia and Constance Lumbard, Helen Moffat, Minnie Hoffman, Mary Evans, Margarite Shieler, Agnes Seebeasse, Mr. and Mrs. T. Dart Walker, Messrs. W. W. Atterbury, R. B Sample, John Dougall, Ruben Newton, R. R. Carnahan, H. C. Rockhill, M. W. Fay, Sherman Petticolas, W. M. Ninde, Percy J. Smith.

A gentleman from Ossian was in the city today and stated that no one knows who opened John Ratliff's saloon for him, a few hours before he was ready. What made the people so mad was the following item, which appeared in the Bluffton Chronicle of Wednesday: "John Ratliff, who has been granted a license by the board of county commissioners to retail spirituous liquors at Ossian, is getting his equipments ready to begin business. Among things being put in readiness is a set of interior signs, some of which read 'No Crusade Loafing Allowed in This Establishment.' 'We are Here for Business, Not for Pleasure,' etc. The chances are that matters will be made warm at Ossian, as there is much talk indulged in already."

At a meeting of the Eastern Star lodge, last evening, it was decided that a committee of ladies would meet at the Temple this afternoon and perfect plans for an entertainment to be given in the near future at the home of Conductor James Craig, corner Masterson and Clinton streets. The proceeds of this entertainment are to go to the worthy poor of the city. While the Eastern Star lodge is not strictly connected with the Masonic lodge, yet it is so closely allied that all Masons, their wives, daughters and friends will gladly attend.
